CHASING A SOLDIER OF THE GREAT WAR

By Carol (Hunt) Uhal

Patrick Clarence Lafferty was neither a Canadian nor a soldier: when he walked into the recruiting office of the 70th Battalion of the Over-Seas Canadian Expeditionary Force on November 12, 1915, he became both. Patrick filled out his attestation paper in Windsor, Essex County, Ontario, Canada. Those papers included much personal information about him as well as an oath which he signed, swearing allegiance to "King George the Fifth." At that time, Great Britain's empire included the nearly self-governing countries of Canada, Australia, South Africa, and New Zealand as well as the Empire of India, Egypt, and numerous smaller countries and islands around the world. George's formal title was King of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India.

Joining the Canadian Expeditionary Force (C.E.F.) would turn out to be a pivotal point in Patrick's life; it would also turn out to be a crucial point in my research into his life. My interest in Patrick's story began on a hot, dry day in July 2008. My friend Sheila Smith and I had driven to Mount Morris in Genesee County, Michigan to enjoy a day of tombstone hunting for members of her Lafferty line. While walking through Calvary Cemetery and looking at various tombstones of the Lafferty family, Sheila began to tell me the story of her great-uncle Patrick Lafferty. She related that Patrick had been a soldier in World War I and had suffered shell shock—in today's terms post-traumatic stress disorder or PTSD. Sheila told me her grandmother, Rose (Lafferty) Hunt, one of Patrick's sisters, had shared this information with her when she was a young child. Grandmother Hunt also said that the family never saw Patrick after the war. No one among current family members knew what happened to him.

Patrick's Story: Intrigue and Mystery

Immediately, I wanted to know where Patrick went after the war as well as when and where he died—finding out where he was buried wouldn't hurt either. I was intrigued, nearly obsessed, by Patrick's story. Growing up reading girl detective series such as Nancy Drew and Judy Bolton, I came to love a good mystery and a cold case is the best kind of all!

As we continued walking through the cemetery, we came to the headstone of Patrick's mother Catharine (McLucas) Lafferty who died in 1897, early in Patrick's life. It seemed so sad that no one knew where Patrick was and that he wasn't buried among his family members. Time to solve this mystery.

Over lunch, we continued discussing Patrick. I learned that his father was James Lafferty and that James and eight other family members had come to Mount Morris from Strabane, County Donegal, Ireland in 1884. James worked for the railroad. Sheila sketched out some information for me about Patrick's brothers and sisters and his uncles. With the core members of the family identified, I thought to myself: "This doesn't seem too hard. I wonder why no one has solved the mystery of Patrick."

Back in Ann Arbor the next day, I began researching Patrick. But at this point I made two classic mistakes—worthy of a rookie genealogist. I believed (very literally) everything Sheila's grandmother had told her about Patrick to be the truth and next I short-circuited my research by going directly to U.S. military records. Both would prove to be bad moves.

I started with the 1917 draft registration cards for World War I. Nothing matched my Patrick Lafferty born March 31, 1885, in Mount Morris, Michigan. I looked at innumerable World War I U.S. military sources and veterans' websites and still nothing. Finally I came to the realization that something was wrong. I needed to go back to the beginning of Patrick's life and track him more thoroughly.

Knowing the family came to the United States in 1884, I began my research with the 1900 United States census as there is no extant 1890 census available. In the 1900 census, the family lives in Vienna Township, Genesee County, Michigan. The family's name is spelled "Lefferty" but the major players are just as Sheila's grandmother described them. As related to Patrick, the family includes Patrick's two grandparents, two uncles, one aunt, and three siblings. Patrick's mother is dead by this time and his father—away working for the railroad—is not listed in the household.

My research in the 1910 U.S. census was productive. Patrick was living in Flint, Genesee County, Michigan with his wife Flossie. No children were listed for them. Confidently, I tackled the 1920 U.S. census, paying special attention to Genesee County. My search results at Ancestry returned a match for Patrick Lafferty, age 35. He was back in Mount Morris, sans wife. I conferred with Sheila and looked at the 1920 U.S. census at HertiageQuest which listed Patrick as 55 years old, not the 35 years old that Ancestry had transcribed and the age my Patrick would have been. It turns out this census entry was for my Patrick's uncle Patrick. Unfortunately, my Patrick doesn't appear to be in the 1920 census.

Brick Wall Nightmare

Now the mystery becomes more complicated. First, I can't find any record of Patrick's military service and now I can't find Patrick. Talk about brick walls. When confronted with a brick wall, most genealogists back up and look for a way around the wall. I decided to do that by learning more about Patrick's wife, Flossie. If I tracked Flossie, maybe I could get back on Patrick's trail and find answers to my questions. I knew from my earliest conversation with Sheila that Patrick married a woman named Flossie Ford and I knew that he was married by the time of the 1910 U.S. census. So with a relatively short span of years to check for his marriage, I began searching Ancestry for the marriage record.

The couple's marriage record was easily found, but it contained two surprises: their marriage took place in Canada as revealed in "Ontario, Canada, Marriages, 1826–1936" and Patrick's residence was given as Port Huron, Saint Clair County, Michigan. That got my attention as I was born and raised in Port Huron. The windows of my elementary school looked out on the Blue Water Bridge. Growing up, I looked at Canada on an almost daily basis. My family frequently crossed the border to shop and dine in Sarnia. No big deal for me, but I wondered why Patrick would get married in Sarnia.

According to their marriage record, Patrick and Flossie were married September 2, 1903, in Sarnia, Lambton County, Ontario. In looking more closely at the registration sheet, I learned why the couple might have chosen Sarnia. It appeared to be a destination wedding place for Port Huron couples. In more than half the entries on the page, at least one of the couple listed a Port Huron address. Perhaps a local substitute for Niagara Falls.

Although finding Patrick's marriage date and place didn't answer my questions of when and where he died, it did give me further details about his life and maybe some additional insight into his personality. I did not realize it yet, but Canada would be critical in the quest to find Patrick.

Another Canadian Marriage

Sometime later, I went back into Canadian marriage records to review the information on the registration sheet for Patrick and Flossie. While I was on the site ("Ontario, Canada, Marriages, 1826-1936") I thought I'd do a more thorough search. Maybe I'd find records for the Canadian branch of my father's family. What I found was another marriage for Patrick. This time Patrick is listed as P. Clarence Lafferty and he's marrying Catherine Schick. According to the record I found in "Ontario Marriages, 1801-1928," the marriage took place May 20, 1912, in Essex County, Ontario—first marriage in Sarnia, Ontario; the second in Windsor, Ontario. Patrick identifies himself as a bachelor, although widower is an option on the form. I assumed the form was marked incorrectly and didn't bother to look for a divorce from Flossie. But what would continue to puzzle me was the question of why Patrick was now Clarence.

Discovering that Patrick had married twice in Canada led me to wonder if he had some special interest or connection to Canada. I checked Detroit city directories for 1912–1915 and found Patrick at various addresses in the city—all close to the Detroit River and with easy access to the ferries crossing to Windsor. Finally, I made an intuitive connection: given his seeming fascination with Canada, could Patrick have served with Canadian forces in the Great War?

Bingo! On my first pass through the Library and Archives Canada's site "Canadian Soldiers of the First World War," I found him listed as P. Clarence Lafferty—the same name under which he married Catherine Schick. Only his attestation paper was viewable on line, but it provided enough information for me to know that this was my Patrick. The record had some discrepancies from facts I knew about Patrick's background. For example, Patrick gives his correct birth date, but uses his father's birth place, Strabane, County Donegal, Ireland. He also lists himself as single. Most likely both were done to ease his entry into the Canadian Expeditionary Force (C.E.F.).

What the Records Reveal

I ordered Patrick's military records from the Library and Archives Canada website. When the records arrived, they provided useful and interesting information. According to his records, Patrick served with the C.E.F. for three years and 130 days. Following his training in Canada, he left for England from Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada on the SS Lapland on April 26, 1916, arriving in England on May 5, 1916. On June 7, 1916, Patrick's unit arrived in France where he would serve until February 13, 1919. When he enlisted in the C.E.F., Patrick was part of the 70th Over-Seas Battalion; in July of 1916, Patrick was transferred to the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles (C.M.R.), Company 1st Québec Regiment.

In late 1916 and again in 1917, Patrick was hospitalized for shell shock, just as Sheila's grandmother had told her. In addition, he was hospitalized in Nice and Marseilles for treatment of a contused hip suffered in an accidental fall mountain climbing in southern France while on leave.

For the bulk of his time in the C.E.F. Patrick's rank was that of private. However, little more than a month following the armistice of November 11, 1918, Patrick was promoted to sergeant and named "Acting Quartermaster." In the record, following the word "Quartermaster" are three illegible words and an unreadable signature. In February of 1919 just as Patrick was proceeding to England, he was "confirmed in the rank of C.Q.M.S."

Patrick headed back to Canada in March of 1919 aboard the RMS Carmania. He arrived at the Port of Halifax, continued on to Montreal, Québec where his discharge certificate was issued, and proceeded to London, Ontario where he was discharged on March 19, 1919. His pay account was closed March 31, 1919.

Patrick's discharge certificate includes a physical description of him. According to his certificate, Patrick was 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighed 150 pounds and had a dark complexion with blue eyes and brown hair. Noted on the certificate is a lack of distinguishing marks. Early in my search for Patrick, Sheila showed me a picture of him taken in France. The photograph matches exactly the description provided in his discharge certificate. Unfortunately, he is not facing the camera so his face is seen only in profile. Patrick is wearing a dark, heavy coat but there is no insignia or other identification on it. He's looking at a farmhouse in the distance.

Strangely, there are some pointed contradictions in the various forms that comprise Patrick's military record. In some he is listed as single; in others he is married. Sometimes his next-of-kin is his father, James Lafferty. Other times, as in some pay-related documents, it's his wife Catherine. Two things Patrick always answers or describes consistently are his religion, which is Roman Catholic and his occupation, which is machinist.

What should have been the most helpful section of Patrick's discharge information turned out to be the most disappointing. There is a section asking for the soldier's "Proposed Residence upon Discharge." In Patrick's case it remained blank. Yet another dead end in my quest to learn what happened to Patrick after the war.

A search through "U.S. Border Crossings from Canada to U.S. 1895-1960" at Ancestry helped me pick up Patrick's trail again. The record shows him arriving in Detroit in March 1919 with a destination of Flint, Michigan and his residence listed as Canada. A related source "Michigan, Detroit Manifests of Arrivals at the Port of Detroit, 1906-1954", also at Ancestry, reveals that Patrick arrived in Detroit on March 22, 1919, just nine days before his 34th birthday. His name is printed on what looks like an index card. Above his name is printed "PERM. Pi." I do not know what that notation means.

Although Patrick may have visited Flint after the war, I know from earlier research that he did not stay there. Turning my attention back to Detroit, I looked in the 1919 city directory and found him listed there as Clarence and living on Commonwealth. It is the last address I've found for him.

When I began trying to solve the mystery of Patrick's seeming disappearance after the war, I assumed he had no children. Sheila's grandmother never mentioned any; Sheila was not aware of any; no children were listed with him and Flossie in the 1910 census. But a lucky break came my way. While looking at FamilySearch records, an entry came up headed "Patrick Lafferty in the marriage record of Helen Lafferty." Under "Bride's father's name" was Lafferty. No first name, just Lafferty. No matter. The mother's name was Flossie Ford. Patrick and Flossie had at least one child, a daughter named Helen.

Divorce Records: Some Surprises

When divorce records became available on Ancestry, I was anxious to see what might turn up for Patrick. Two records popped up quickly under "Michigan, Divorce Records, 1897–1952." The first records the divorce of Patrick Lafferty and Flossie M. Lafferty. Flossie filed for the divorce on January 5, 1921; it was granted April 23, 1921, in Genesee County. The divorce was requested by Flossie and lists the reason for the divorce as desertion. Looking at the 1921 date of the divorce, it is apparent that Patrick neglected to obtain a divorce prior to his 1912 marriage to Catherine Schick.

Patrick's second divorce is filed under Clarence P. Lafferty and Catherine S. Lafferty. It was filed August 27, 1920 and granted August 23, 1921, in Wayne County. Catherine requested the divorce on the grounds of extreme cruelty. The record lists two children.

Now I know that Patrick had three children: one daughter and two children whose gender and names I do not know. Before I finished thinking about how to identify the two children, I stumbled across them. I was trying to follow Catherine's trail after the divorce and found their two daughters in the 1930 U.S. census living with Catherine's brother in Ogemaw County, Michigan. Their oldest daughter was born in 1913 and the youngest in 1916, which is a bit sad because by then Patrick is already serving with the Canadian Expeditionary Force. In tracking Patrick's three daughters, I found that all three married and had children. Patrick's youngest daughter named her second son Patrick. Very possibly, Patrick has grandchildren and almost certainly great-grandchildren alive today. Do they know his story?

Closing in on a Death Date

The last information I was able to gather on Patrick comes from his father James Lafferty's obituary in the Flint Journal on Thursday, March 5, 1931. It lists Patrick as one of three surviving sons, but does not give a location for him. Patrick's younger brother George died in 1943. In George's obituary in the Flint Journal on January 16, 1943, Patrick is not listed as a survivor, leading me to think that Patrick died in the 12-year span between 1931 and 1943.

It's sometimes been difficult to trace Patrick because he is also known as Clarence, particularly in Canadian records. After his return from the Great War, I'm surmising he used Clarence. The last address I found for him in Detroit was listed under Clarence; his second divorce was filed under Clarence and any veterans benefits granted him by Canada would likely be issued to Clarence Lafferty as he never used the name Patrick while serving with the C.E.F.

Finding Patrick: Will it ever happen?

Will I ever know what happened to Patrick? I think it is highly possible. More records are constantly coming on line. I've taken classes, learned much from joining the Genealogy Society of Washtenaw County, and generally improved my skills in searching for people.

My original theory is that Patrick returned to live in Canada. He fought side-by-side with Canadian forces for more than three years; perhaps, he thought of himself as much a Canadian as an American. The 5th C.M.R., 1st Québec regiment was French Canadian, founded in the Eastern Townships of Québec. Between the men he served with and his time in France, he probably learned to speak passable French. I think he would have been comfortable in Québec. I searched the 1921 census of Canada, but did not find him in any of the provinces. My next tactic will be to search for him through any veterans benefits awarded to him by Canada.

But there are other possibilities. I did find in the "California, Death Index, 1905–1939" an entry for Patrick Clarence Lafferty who died September 14, 1939, in San Joaquin County, California. Currently, I have not been able to prove or disprove that this is my Patrick. I also found an entry for Clarence Lafferty leaving San Francisco by ship and sailing to Honolulu, Hawaii, docking at the Port of Honolulu on November 25, 1941, just 12 days before Pearl Harbor.

Could Patrick have been in California or Hawaii? My sense of him tells me: "Yes, absolutely!" Patrick was an adventurer, a mover, a restless traveler. Not so much a family man. Where I don't expect to find him is anywhere near his beginnings—"down on the farm."

REV. FRIEDRICH SCHMID'S BAPTISMAL RECORDS, 1847–1875, WASHTENAW COUNTY, MICHIGAN
(Part Sixteen)

Translated & transcribed by Rob and Cyndy Steward, 2018

The original records of Rev. Friedrich Schmid are currently housed and may be accessed in The Michigan Historical Collections, Bentley Historical Library, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Please note that the handwriting of Rev. Schmid is not easily deciphered, in part due to his penmanship. The records contain entries written in old German script and some using English script. In addition, the pages in his records are not numbered. It is our understanding that he kept notes as he traveled and then entered them into his record books when he returned home. This may explain that while the records are fairly complete there are some gaps or omissions.

We have maintained the spelling Rev. Schmid used in the case of names. Items enclosed in parentheses are usually comments or notes of the translators or indicate alternate spellings. The term "geb." in relation to a female name, refers to "born as" or maiden name. A "+" at the beginning or end of a line indicates the person is deceased. "Unehl." indicates that the parents were not married to each other at the time of the baptism. A "-?-" indicates the specific entry was illegible.

Rev. Schmid's Baptismal Records are in column format as follows:
(Left hand pages – a.) "Chronological Number" of the child for that particular year; Name of Child; Parents Names; Place; Birth Date.
(Right hand pages – b.) Baptismal Date and Place; Sponsors Names (sometimes marital status or relationship of the sponsors are listed).
Columns with no entry or missing information are indicated by three hyphens (---).

POLL LISTS, LODI TOWNSHIP, WASHTENAW COUNTY, MICHIGAN, 1837

Transcribed by Nancy H. Krohn

Among the earliest extant poll lists for Washtenaw County are two 1837 lists for Lodi Township found in the Washtenaw County, Michigan records at Bentley Historical Library, University of Michigan and are printed courtesy of the library. Michigan achieved statehood on January 26, 1837 and these elections were held later that year. On August 21st and 22nd, representatives to Congress were elected while representatives to the state legislature, state officers and various county officers were elected on November 6th and 7th.

The August list has 148 names and the November list has 159. The poll clerks are not named on either poll. The original lists were ordinally numbered with the given name followed by surname. The November list begins with ordinal number 2 and has two voters entered as number 36, noted as 36 and 36A. For ease of searching, the two lists are combined and sorted alphabetically by surname. Spelling remains as found on the original.

Code: AUG.xxx = Poll List August 21 & 22, 1837.ordinal number on original list.
NOV.xxx = Poll List November 6 & 7, 1837.ordinal number on original list.
